Healthy Takeout Restaurant Picks:
Where to Go and Where to Skip

Ordering healthy takeout isn't easy. But some restaurants at least give you a fighting chance, while others … not so much. This guide will spotlight some of the best choices and flag some of the places to avoid — or at least approach with caution.

Good Takeout Spots

Chipotle
Customizable bowls. Prioritize proteins, veggies, brown rice. Limit chips & heavy sauces.

Starbucks
Opt for protein boxes, oatmeal, egg white sandwiches. Avoid sugary drinks & pastries.

Sweetgreen or Chopt
Salads & bowls. Opt for light, olive oil- or vinegar-based dressings.

Cava
Favor whole grains, brown rice, & lean proteins. Skip the pita.

Panera Bread
Some good choices, but many high-carb & sugary options.

Takeout Spots to Avoid (or Approach with Caution)

Subway
Not the "healthy fast food choice" it pretends to be. Surprisingly processed.

McDonald's, Wendy's, Burger King
Mainly avoid, but salads, oatmeal, and grilled chicken sandwiches can be okay. Skip the burgers & fries.

Bagel places and pizza places
Carb central.

Other regional takeout
(Chinese, Greek, Indian, Italian, etc.): Easy to overeat. Watch out for the breads, noodles, and white rice.
